

aixigo presents its High Performance PMS in the US

Aachen, September 2018 – On September 24 the Aachen-based software company will have the chance to present its high performance portfolio management technology to the audience of America. During the FinovateFall, which will take place in New York, aixigo will be one of the presenters.

Marcus Gründler, Head of Portfolio Management Systems at aixigo, and Mario Alves, Head of Sales and Partner Management, will explain the key features of aixigo technology in the Finovate-usual format of the 7-minute stage presentation to the audience of the FinovateFall in New York. With this aixigo enables financial service providers to provide extremely fast and flexible services to their customers.

"Applying for the presentation at the New York event was a real highlight and very exciting for us. The news that we were accepted for the demo slot and that our innovation is also very interesting for the New York audience of the Finovate, blew us away. We are really excited to be in New York" said Mario Alves.

The Finovate series of events is a conference based on short-presentations for innovative start-ups and established business enterprises in the bank and financial sector. The organiser is the FinovateGroup. Participants and visitors will be provided with insights into the future of financial development through a fast-moving, private and unique format.
